TUCSON, Ariz. – The University of Arizona Center for Integrative Medicine (UACIM) is awarding an inaugural Alumni of the Year award to a graduate of their educational programs who is advancing the field of integrative medicine. Open to graduates of the Fellowship in Integrative Medicine as well as the Integrative Health & Lifestyle program, nominations are solicited from among other graduates.

The 2017 winner of the award is David Kilgore, MD, FAAFP. Dr Kilgore is Health Sciences Clinical Professor of Family Medicine at the University of California, Irvine (UCI) School of Medicine and has been working to increase access to integrative health resources for underserved patients.

“There are so many well-deserving other alumni I’m sure,” Dr Kilgore said, “and any work I’ve done would not have been possible without all the wonderful ideas and mentorship from many people at UACIM, as well as support and encouragement at my own organization.”

A graduate of the University of Southern California School of Medicine, Kilgore went on to complete his residency in family medicine, a fellowship in faculty development, and numerous other post-graduate training before completing the Fellowship in Integrative Medicine in 2011.

Dr. David Kilgore

“Dave has been an incredible collaborator,” said Dr Victoria Maizes, Executive Director of UACIM. “We have worked together on so many integrative medicine educational projects and Dave has done an incredible job implementing initiatives in the UCI health care system.”

“We are delighted to watch our graduates change medical education and practice!” said Dr Andrew Weil, Founder and Director of UACIM. “Dr Dave Kilgore’s accomplishments exemplify our goals.”
